CLYDE Connection

More Investment In Clyde

There are several properties in the Village Of Clyde that are being developed. The house known to locals as the “Higgins House” is being remodelled as a rental property by private owners. They see Clyde as a place to invest where economics and small town pride strike just the right balance. The new owners are taking great care and attention to keep the charm this house brings to the community while fully updating it. With impressive effort, it has been removed from the existing foundation and will be built on a new basement. The new owner plans to complete it by next year.

CAO Ron Cust says “This home was originally owned by a grain elevator agent.” “One of the conditions of sale for Clydes historical homes is that they are refurbished to maintain the historical feel and will benefit the Village Of Clyde community for the next generation.”

Getting the Dirt On Clyde

The Village Of Clyde compost pile that opened May 1 provides a critical function for maintenance staff in the village. The grass clippings residents drop off at the site are turned into compost. Staff uses it to cut down on the need for hauling in dirt and soil amenders to create healthy grass areas for the residents to enjoy. CAO Ron Cust says “This is why it is important for residents to only put grass and items from your garden in the village compost area so that it can decompose with minimal labor cost.” Twigs and branches require larger labor costs to turn into compost.
